

Pointers For Parents A New Children's Book About Money

(NAPSA)—There's good news for parents who want to teach their children about the value of money—and how to manage it.

A new line of educational books has been created to help children learn about financial subjects. The first in the series is “My Money Journal: A Safe Space For Tracking Earning, Spending & Saving” by Karris Golden and Melanie Decker.

A new interactive book has been created to help children learn how to manage money.

The book is designed so children can fill it with personal information, photos and drawings. Adults can use this one-of-a-kind journal to introduce the concepts of earning, spending, saving and goal setting.

Using the prompts in the book, parents can share their personal knowledge, stories and experiences as a way of helping children make wise decisions about their future. Said Golden, “It’s never too early to develop financial skills.”

To learn more or to save by ordering online, visit www.traderspress.com/naps.