A New Way To Live Your Life In Your Lane

(NAPS)—Expressive, accomplished and forward thinking—that's what drivers are discovering about the all-new 2002 Mercury Mountaineer, an SUV that allows them to live life in their own lane. The new model offers a redesigned package, improved powertrain, 16-inch standard wheels and tires, and the addition of an independent rear suspension. The rear suspension makes it possible to offer a standard disappearing third-row seat for seating capacity up to seven adults or cargo capacity of 81.3 cubic feet. Another feature that sets Mountaineer apart from other SUVs is its fully boxed frame that improves rigidity and resists twisting movement. With no switches and buttons, Mountaineer's All-Wheel Drive system is permanently engaged and requires no action from the driver.
