

Dinner For Two—How About A Little Romance On The Side?

(NAPS)—Just got engaged? Or just hopelessly in love? Why not mark the occasion with a romantic dinner for two—and once the menu is complete, why not create a little romance on the side?

A TUG AT THE HEART-STRINGS—can be created by popping a surprise into a trinket box engraved with a personal message.

Make sure your evening is a night to remember with these creative tips:

- Set your candlelit dinner in an off-the-wall place, such as the roof of your apartment building, the park or the beach.
- Plan on serving some bubbly—and pour it in personalized champagne flutes. Have your names (or nicknames) etched in them forever.
- Select a number that has a special meaning for the two of you: seven because you've been together for seven years, or fifteen because you met on the fifteenth, and buy that number of flowers.
- How about a silver picture frame for your handwritten menu, a personal love poem or sexy photo of yourself? Engrave it with the day you met.
- Create a homemade coupon good for a personal service from you, such as breakfast in bed or a back rub. Pop it in a ribbon heart trinket box engraved with a personal message.
