

MONEY SAVING IDEAS

Discount Shopping With Valuable Rewards

(NAPSA)—Despite fluctuating gas prices and sluggish home sales, an estimated 70 percent of consumers plan to do just as much online shopping as they did last year. There's one major difference this time around: Many of these consumers are now saving money and earning cash back, while continuing to shop with their favorite merchants.

By registering with ShopAtHome.com, the largest discount shopping Web site, consumers can save with any of the site's affiliated big-name retailers such as Target, Saks Fifth Avenue, eToys and The Sharper Image.

When shopping for the perfect holiday, birthday or anniversary gift, the savings add up fast. Shoppers who visit ShopAtHome.com receive cash back four times a year, exclusive money-saving specials and access to comparison shopping at more than 1,500 leading retailers. Plus, the site features a sophisticated and unobtrusive toolbar that automatically alerts shoppers to coupons and rebates from merchants you already shop with.

Bijal Choksi, a frequent Internet shopper, encourages anyone interested in saving money online to use a discount shopping site such as ShopAtHome.com.

"The savings started adding up the first time I used it. If you're going to be buying from a particular store anyway, why wouldn't you want to get discounts and money back? I love sharing this secret with my friends and family."
