

Accessorizing Reaches New Heights

Emphasizing The Style In Lifestyle

(NAPSA)—Accessorizing once meant adding a few traditional items such as a belt, handbag or a piece of jewelry to your wardrobe. This year, however, accessorizing has reached new heights. The premise is really quite easy—just add one fashionable accessory to everything you do.

Most importantly, remember that whether it is music, art, food or wine, always add your own unique element of style. Consider these tips from the fashion forward Italian makers of Ecco Domani 2000 Chianti to help you indulge in stylish accessorizing:

- The Art Of Elite Entertaining. To host a stylish soirée, choose a theme to serve as a guide for invites, attire, decorations and food. Be sure the theme you choose reflects your accessorized lifestyle. Because Chianti is a fresh, well-structured wine, it can make an ideal complement to many types of pastas, hors d'oeuvres and red or white meats. A bottle of wine, wrapped neatly in a fine cloth, also makes an excellent gift for most any host.

- Master the Must-Haves. Know the basic clothing and accessory trends and wear them with confidence. This season, the fashion-conscious are raving about long earrings, fishnet stockings, shimmer makeup and anything adorned with graffiti or studs. These accessories are making significant statements while the cool behind the color palette is dark reds, smoky purples and deep mauve.

- Dine Out On This. The latest rage in cuisine is adding ethnic spices to tried and true American dishes, including wasabi mashed potatoes, ginger chicken, and curried rice. While adding flair to fare is an important step in accessorizing your life, nothing says more about you than your choice in dining partners—be sure the company you keep is an accessory to fun.
