Hot Tubs: More Than Just Hot Water

(NAPSA)—Recent studies show that Americans are striving to find a greater sense of balance between work, play and spending personal time with family and friends. They are longing for family connections and personal rejuvenation.

It's no wonder with life's hectic schedules that Americans are rapidly discovering the advantages of hot tub ownership and the therapeutic benefits of hydro-massage—the combination of warm water, buoyancy and the massaging action of powerful jets.

The healing power of water has long been known—Asian cultures have enjoyed the soothing, healing qualities of hot water for centuries and Native American cultures have always considered water a purifier for the body and spirit.

The soothing warmth and buoyancy of warm water can help reduce stress, soothe sore and tired muscles, ease arthritis pain and even provide a better night's sleep. The massaging action of the jets stimulates the release of endorphins, the body's natural painkillers.

In today's fast paced world, a hot tub can provide much needed relaxation as well as a haven that promotes togetherness with family and friends. Industry leader Hot Spring Spas, maker of the world's number one selling brand of portable spa, is celebrating its 25th Anniversary and 25 years of innovation with a "25 Years
