Inexpensive, Imaginative Way To Update Décor

Vinyl wall graphics allow homeowners to inexpensively change the feel of a room.

(NAPSA)—For many homeowners, the one thing preventing them from giving their place a face-lift is money. Fortunately, thanks to a new kind of inexpensive accents, consumers are able to give plans to freshen their décor a stamp of approval.

Products such as vinyl wall art allow people to update their rooms with minimal cost and effort—keeping existing furniture but changing the feel and style of a space. And you can further accentuate the new designs with artistic touches such as stamped shelves, shadow boxes and picture frames.

Stampin' Up!'s stylish Décor Elements self-adhesive vinyl art provides a unique decorating experience for walls, mirrors, windows and other smooth surfaces. It gives people another way to express their creativity—just on a larger canvas than a card or scrapbook page. Not only does it make your home a beautiful representation of your style, but it's also inexpensive compared to painting, framing art or buying new furniture.

Whether you want to spice up the walls of your home or create other exciting projects for display, Décor Elements can be an easy way to stylishly and inexpensively express your creativity, using products priced from as little as $4 up to $70. It offers an easier-than-ever way to create home décor and coordinate with 3-D items already in the home or ones that exist in your imagination. It helps create a complete space that reflects your style and expresses who you are.

The vinyl art is well suited for creating quick and distinctive home décor accents and can be used on frames, tiles, wood, plastic and glass. It goes on easier than wallpaper and can be removed easily. The line's words and phrases, frames, custom images and monogram letters and numbers offer consumers the choice of traditional, whimsical, contemporary and subtle accents.
