

WORLD'S GREATEST VACATIONS

Millionth Guest To Explore Western Canada By Train

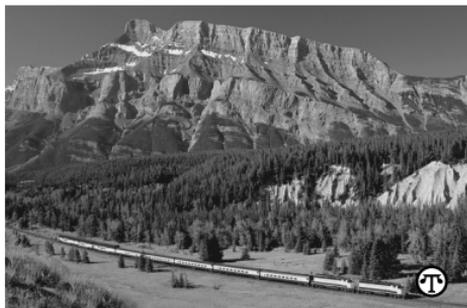

(NAPSA)—A train journey through some of North America's most scenic landscapes could truly be one in a million for a lucky traveler this spring.

Sometime this year, a traveler will be recognized and awarded as the one millionth individual to experience the world-renowned Rocky Mountaineer train through Western Canada and the Canadian Rockies.

The Rocky Mountains of Canada are filled with inspiring scenery, wildlife, a multitude of recreational activities and offer plenty of unique opportunities generally known only by the people who live in the area. Rocky Mountaineer Vacations, one of Canada's leading tourism providers, gives vacationers the unique opportunity to view such stunning sights as glacier-fed lakes, majestic mountain ranges and ferocious rivers.

Recently honored with the World Travel Award as the "World's Leading Travel Experience by Train"—the travel industry's equivalent to the Oscars—for the third consecutive year, Rocky Mountaineer Vacations will soon welcome its one millionth guest. That's a further indication of the company's success in bringing the wide-open spaces of Western Canada a little closer to home.

Through the provinces of Alberta and British Columbia, there is so much to see—and great distances to cover—that the most effective way to take it all in is to travel by train. This is true whether or not you're looking to experience a quick getaway to the Canadian Rockies or you'd rather take your time and get to know the areas that make Western
