

TIPS ON TRIPS

Paris And London

(NAPSA)—You may be surprised at the best way to travel between England and the rest of Europe. It's not by plane. It's not by boat. It's the train. Traveling at over 180 miles an hour, the high-speed Eurostar train takes just 2 hours 35 minutes to go from downtown London to downtown Paris.

There's a better way to cross the Channel.

There's just a 20 minute advance check-in—rather than hours—and no need to waste time traveling between the airport and the city. Eurostar has almost hourly departures in both directions. Roundtrip fares start as low as $90 for standard class. There's wi-fi capability in all the lounges.

No wonder more than 65 percent of all people traveling between London and Paris, including Europeans, take the train instead of the plane. To find out more, call Rail Europe at 1-800-EUROSTAR or visit www.rail-europe.com.
