Peace Of Mind

(NAPSA)—In today's uncertain times, security and safety are more important than ever. Now, security for homeowners, parents and entrepreneurs is easy and affordable, thanks to a new surveillance system called Safeworld PC Surveillance Kit. This combination of PC Web camera and motion detection software offers peace of mind, allowing you to see what's happening in your home or office even when you're away—from anywhere in the world.

Designed for easy installation—in as little as five minutes—the system works with most existing computer and Internet connections; all you need is a USB port. Once installed, PC Surveillance Kit detects motion, automatically records the incident, and then notifies you remotely so you can log on to a secure Web site and view a live video feed of what's happening.

The system also lets you select 24-hour recording, intermittent recording or motion-activated recording. In motion-detection mode, the sensitivity level can be customized, and all recordings include a time and date stamp. Images can be stored on your hard drive. You can even receive an e-mail or wireless message when-

The software is great to remotely watch kids and pets to see that they're safe, or check in on elderly relatives or babysitters. At work, PC Surveillance Kit is ideal for monitoring customer traffic, important files, a safe or cash register.

Best of all, the price tag is under $100 for both the camera and the motion-detection software. This is the only camera and software combination available that provides remote access to live video at a value price. To learn more, visit www.encoreusa.com/kit.
