

Holiday Shopping On The Internet

People And Presents Can Really Click

(NAPSA)—Finding great gifts online for just about everyone on your list may be easier if you heed a few hints on how to match the gift with the one who gets it:

Mr. and Ms. Fix-it. Since just about the beginning of time, humans have cherished hand tools. Cavemen had primitive stone tools but the modern American has Stanley. You can visit www.stanleytools.com to find the latest in home improvement technology from anti-vibe hammers to laser-guided measuring devices and long-life flashlights on tripods. Fill that toolbox with just a few clicks and save time in the process because these gifts are one size fits all.

Relax and Indulge. Just about everyone needs to de-stress from time to time. Fortunately, that can be easier than ever. From the Gardeners collection of hand treatments, to the adorable Nursery Tails bath time products for children and stress-relieving spa gifts, the Crabtree & Evelyn Web site will guide you through a nearly endless array of eclectic treats for all the people in your life in need of a little indulgence (maybe even yourself?). You can even get free gift wrapping and shipping on any order through December 19. Check it out at www.crabtree-evelyn.com.

Bargain-hunter's paradise. If bargain hunting is your game, www.smartbargains.com, the exclusive on-line shopping destination for Loehmann's, may be the place for you. You can find practically everything under the sun, from bed linens and home furnishings to the latest fashions, jewelry and designer handbags; something for nearly everyone and, at prices up to 65 percent off retail value, you may be able to afford to treat yourself, too.

You can use the Internet to help you select a holiday gift to suit the personality of just about everyone on your list.

"The Internet is ideally suited for the holiday gift-buying season," says Jeffrey Grau, eMarketer senior analyst.

Once you're done making that list and checking it twice, you can select the most appropriate gifts for each person and have more time to spend doing some of those traditional activities the holidays can really be all about. Making cookies and stringing cranberries is not only important to the children in your family, it's good for your mental health, too. Relax, knowing you've got the right present for each person and go create some special holiday memories.
