

MAKING LIFE MORE FUN

Romancing With Wine Can Be Divine

(NAPS)—Love and wine are each divine—and they can be even better together. These natural partners have brought out the best in each other for as long as anyone can remember.

Ancient myths hold that wine was created to serve love's call and even the language of wine is couched in love. We say that as wine ages, primary flavors marry to create secondary ones. Sound familiar?

Wine can add atmosphere to any occasion and make a simple meal splendid. Here's a suggestion for a romantic meal: Caviar Heart Toasts, Heart of Romaine and Cherry Tomato Salad, Potato Porcini Passionata, Wine, Chateaubriand, and Chocolate.

While romance may come naturally, in a Palm Pilot world, many people appreciate a few romantic reminders.

Here are a few winning ideas from Wine.com to help make romance a part of your life all year long:

- Send wine with a customized label that says just how you feel. Wine.com's personalized wine has a lovely label for every occasion, including hearts and cupids. Add your own personal message.
- Send a bottle of wine with a poem you wrote yourself.
- Arrange an evening of wine and music. Pair a bottle of wine with some special tunes.
- Plan a special evening in, not out—present the "Fireside Picnic"

You can celebrate romantic holidays all through the year.

and linger in the firelight with a bottle of white, a bottle of red, and sweet and savory nibbles.

• Declare it your personal Valentine's Week in spring, summer or fall and send a little treat each day. For instance:

Sunday: "A Little Love—a single truffle along with a split of Champagne.

Monday: Try Vino-Therapy—Champagne and spa treats in a gift basket.

Tuesday: Lagioule forged pocket knife and corkscrew.

Wednesday: A pair of Riedel crystal Champagne flutes.

Thursday: Deuce of Hearts—two bottles of red wine.

Friday: Some wine-filled chocolates.

Saturday: Champagne and truffles.

For more information, visit www.wine.com.