

GREAT GRILLING

Searing Is Believing

(NAPSA)—The excitement is electric for apartment and condo dwellers who love the taste of food cooked outdoors on a grill. A high-performance, condo-friendly electric grill has been created that performs like a gas grill but needs no propane.

The secret of this electric grill, called the PowerChef, is an active cooking surface that reaches 650° F to lock in flavor and juices.

The PowerChef is safe with no open flames, combustion, or volatile fumes. It's also good for the environment as it has a fraction of the carbon footprint of gas grills and plugs into a standard electrical outlet.

Just Plug It In—An electric grill that eliminates the hassles of gas grills.

Buffalo Chicken Skewers

- 1½ pounds boneless skinless chicken breast (cut into 2-inch pieces)
- 1 stick of butter (cubed)
- 1 bottle hot sauce
- 1 tablespoon of honey
- 1 teaspoon of brown sugar
- 1 yellow onion

Preheat PowerChef electric grill on medium/high heat.

In saucepan, melt butter cubes and add brown sugar and honey while stirring over medium heat. After combining the butter and sugar mixture, add hot sauce to taste. Then cut the chicken and onion and add onto skewers.

For more information, visit www.dimplex.com.