Teach In China

(NAPSA)—Despite its geopolitical importance and imposing size, China remains an enigma to many Westerners. Council Exchanges offers college graduates with excellent English skills the amazing opportunity to learn about the realities of this vast nation first-hand by living and working in China.

An amazing opportunity to experience China first-hand by teaching English is available through Council Exchanges.

Teach In China participants teach English to Chinese students and participate in the daily life of a community while experiencing the changes of the country during economic and cultural transition.

Placement, the Program Handbook, Lonely Planet China Guide, pre- and post-departure support, 7-day training in Beijing, a local salary, and free housing are arranged by the Council Exchanges' offices in New York and Beijing. Program departures are in February and August.
