

Time To Set Sail

(NAPSA)—Despite the economy's choppy waters, it might actually be a good time to weigh anchor on your dreams of buying a boat.

This may seem counterintuitive, but prices are way down, manufacturer rebates are high and in the case of boat and watercraft brands such as Yamaha, financing approval rates have also been strong.

“We’ve been fortunate enough to maintain strong approval rates

Now can be a great time to revisit dreams of boat ownership.

year over year through our lenders,” says Yamaha’s National Marketing Manager, Bryan Seti. “So our customers are still getting access to credit, while being able to take advantage of some great promotional offers this time of the year.”

Not all manufacturers are in the same boat, but even in this economy, there is still room for fun. And with boat show season in full swing, it may be an even better time to shop for a boat. To find a boat show near you, visit www.OfficialBoatShows.com.
