

Vacations Of A Lifetime

Your Mission: Visit The Best Of Britain

(NAPSA)—Since the release of Johnny English, the new spy comedy from Universal Pictures, Americans have begun to think British.

In partnership with Universal, VisitBritain has produced a new Johnny English Map, "Mission: VisitBritain" in four languages. The map briefs intrepid visitors on what to see and do upon arrival in England's capital before setting out on a mission to visit the best and rest of Britain.

The guide encourages visitors to get in touch with their own secret agent by planning their mission in four stages:

- Research. Discover the British countryside through some of the sites Johnny English visits in the film, such as Hughenden Manor in the Chiltern Hills—home of Prime Minister Benjamin Disraeli from 1847 to 1881.

- Gadgets and kits. Get your own secret agent gear, available in the many specialty shops around the country.

- Training. Get into peak secret agent condition by taking part in some of Britain's more adventurous activities such as pony-trekking, parachuting or some of the extreme sports activities taking place throughout Scotland's landscapes.

- Get moving. Learn how to handle fast cars, boats and planes by taking a spin at Silverstone race track or watching the TT motorbike races on the Isle of Man.

Once their mission is successfully completed, visitors can Johnny English is a trademark and copyright of Universal Studios.

One in five visitors comes to Britain because of something they've seen in a movie or on TV. The spy spoof Johnny English is expected to make a visit to Britain even more popular.

reward themselves by relaxing in luxurious spy style with a stay at a castle or historic property, island hopping around the Channel Islands, or a round of golf.

Starring popular British comedian Rowan Atkinson as a junior intelligence officer thrust into the spotlight and equipped with a highly-specialized automobile when the crown jewels are stolen, Johnny English has become an international box-office sensation.

For a free copy of the Johnny English Map, call 1-877-899-8391. For more information, visit www.visitbritain.com/usa.