

Women of Achievement

Women And Religion

(NAPSA)—For many women, nuns and religious sisters have provided a role model of women in powerful positions. Today, Catholic women religious occupy high levels of achievement in many professional fields from the board room to executive offices.

“The magnitude of the contributions of religious women to our Church and to American society is overwhelming,” said Msgr. William A. Kerr, executive director of the Pope John Paul II Cultural Center. To honor this contribution, the center is staging an exhibit titled “God’s Women: Nuns in America” through Jan. 30, 2005.

A new exhibit charts the history and influence of Catholic religious women in the U.S.

The exhibit spans a 300-year history, highlighting the lives of three American saints, Elizabeth Ann Seton, Frances Cabrini and Katherine Drexel. It also looks at nuns in popular culture, including the Flying Nun, the Singing Nun and the Ingrid Bergman-nun. Photographs and more than 50 dolls in authentic habits are featured. For more information, call 877-767-3572 or visit www.jp2cc.org.