

What to Watch

Yin Yang Yo!

(NAPSA)—If anyone has asked you how's your Woo Foo lately, don't be surprised. He or she has been watching the clever animated adventure/comedy series "Yin Yang Yo!" The series follows the antics of a brother and sister—fun-loving, hyperkinetic tween rabbits—who must put aside their sibling rivalry when faced with the sometimes idiotic forces of evil, including Carl the Evil Cockroach Wizard (who still lives at home with his mom), to learn the mystical martial art of Woo Foo.

Set in a world of legend and lore, a new animated action/comedy series follows the antics of two hyperkinetic rabbits.

Yin and Yang train under the guidance of Master Yo, an irritable old panda forced out of retirement to rebuild the lost art, two heroes at a time. Alas, Yin and Yang's judgment most often misses the mark, always with hilarious consequences.

Geared towards kids 6-11 with cleverly written comedy and visually engaging anime, the series begins in September on Toon Disney during the Jetix programming block.
